When working on projects, it is always the same problems that arise: lack of a consistent communication platform, difficulty working in teams, less productivity, and difficulty working in teams from different locations.

Folder structures on servers are a common solution, but often lead to confusion and coordination problems. Open Text Web Solutions provides a work environment that can be customized for a particular team task. It stores all documents securely and creates a comprehensive communication system. This approach helps to reduce unnecessary complications and promote target-oriented work.
