Web Components is establishing a new standard of adding functionality to a Web page. The component concept is the foundation for integrating applications, data stores, or interaction features into the Open Text Web Solutions. Within SmartEdit an editor has access to a Web Component Catalog that offers a set of predefined modules that can be used to enrich editorial content, including the popular Web 2.0 capabilities.

Include a Forum, Blog, or Comment right on your Web site today, with moderation approval options if necessary. A mini calendar or a discussion on a collaborative document area in the Open Text Livelink Enterprise Server can easily be included on your Web site. The value of our ecosystem is expanded with the development and sharing of new Web components by partners and customers.
