Open Text Web Solutions offers unique redlining functionality that highlights all changes to Web pages while in workflow. Combined with version management, automated escalation rules and email notifications, Open Text Web Solutions applies a fast and transparent review and release process to online content.

In the browser, pre-selected authors are able to easily modify the areas, for which they have authorized access. All they need to do is to click a "red dot" to modify text and images. The outcome is instantly displayed in preview mode and quality can be checked by correcting any errors.
